TueBiFit

Your companion for the gym & the nutrition!

Cursor Hackathon

March 2026

1 - The market problem

Beginners

- Program uncertainty: New users struggle to pick the right plan and execute exercises correctly.
- Fragmented guidance: Advice is scattered across apps and creators, increasing confusion and injury risk.

Impact: Early churn in weeks 1-8

Intermediate & advanced

- Nutrition mismatch: Calorie and macro targets often fail to match body-composition goals.
- Programming drift: Splits and muscle focus are misaligned with equipment, recovery capacity, and priorities.

Impact: Stalled progress despite consistency

2 - The Market Opportunity

The "Wellness Wave" is colliding with a "Trust Gap." We sit at the intersection of high demand and unaddressed privacy concerns.

THE PULL (MARKET DEMAND)

Wellness Importance	82%
Prioritizing More Wellness	58%
Daily AI App Usage	49%

THE FRICTION (MARKET GAP)

Worry about AI Data Privacy	55%
Trust AI over Human Plans	10%

> The Wedge: By solving for privacy and scientific grounding, we convert the 90% who currently distrust generic AI tools.

3 - Our Solution

A mobile app where an AI agent builds personalized workout + meal plans from real exercise (MCP) & nutrition DBs (MCP), along with on-device assistance.

Why Us?

- Grounded and contextualized - tool-backed scientific data, not vibes-only convo or chat
- Highly credible data sources
- Unified - provide a one stop solution for training planning + meal planning + form monitoring in one flow
- A B2B2C wedge - consumer app with B2B pilot path (gyms, wellness platforms) for faster growth and moats

4 - Business model

Acquire Users

Consumers join through creator content, gym pilots, and referral loops.

→

Convert to Paid

Starter at $3.99, then upgrade to $9.99-11.99 monthly premium plans.

→

Deliver Value

Personalized workouts + nutrition + on-device rep tracking improve outcomes.

→

Expand Revenue

B2B2C pilots with gyms and wellness platforms, plus future white-label API.

Retention drives recurring subscriptions, then distribution partnerships widen margins, after showing POC.

Who Pays	Price	Cost to Serve
B2C now, B2B later Ad/sponsored partnerships possible but not core to initial model	$9.99/mo (B2B/user) - 11.99/mo (B2C) + $4.99 starter	~$3-8/user/mo, target 65%+ margin

5 - Go-to-market

EXAMPLE PERSONA 1

Anna, 22
Engineering student, beginner lifter, budget-conscious.

- Goal: Build muscle in 12 weeks
- Pain: Confused by conflicting plans online
- Why TueBiFit: Clear workouts + food plan + private rep feedback

EXAMPLE PERSONA 2

Ajay, 62
Retired Professional, looking to stay active, easy-to-use workflow.

- Goal: Wants to manage cholesterol levels by staying active and eating well
- Pain: Overloaded with information and unsure where to start
- Why TueBiFit: Clear workouts + food plan + private rep feedback

First 10 customers

- 1 university - recreation / lifting club pilot
- 2 local gyms - free pilot for small establishments on retention
- 3 municipality-hosted services - health-focused initiatives by local governments

Switch: One plan for my equipment & diet + rep feedback without cloud video.

6 - Why us - Why now

Why us

- Execution depth: We already combined MCP-based planning, nutrition grounding and on-device rep tracking in one flow.
- Clear wedge: Privacy-first feedback plus personalized plans solve the exact pain points shown in beginner and 50+ personas.
- Practical GTM: University, local gym, and municipality pilot channels are already defined for first distribution.

Why now

- Demand tailwind: Wellness intent is high and AI-assisted fitness behavior is now mainstream.
- Market gap: Most tools are generic or cloud-heavy; we are differentiated on personalization + privacy.
- Business timing: B2C subscriptions can fund early growth while B2B2C pilots unlock lower-CAC scale.
